"OLEO" INSTEAD OF BUTTER. Fraud Practiced Upon Washingtonians-Proposed Legislation.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, March 22 .- A bill is to be introduced in Congress enlarging the law which taxes and regulates the sale of butterine or oleomargarine. It is proposed to compel all hotels, cafes, restaurants, boarding houses and other places of public entertainment using butterine or "oleo" to announce the fact either on their bills of fare or placards. An investigation made into the sale and use of butterine in Washington discloses the fact that nearly every one of the hotels, restaurants, boarding houses and other places of public entertainment use this article exclusively for cooking and almost exclusively on the tables, without the knowledge of guests. It is found that throughout the country oleomargarine is being sold as butter in broken packages to consumers, and that the public is being imposed upon to an outrageous extent. The consumers are imposed upon in price, as well as in article, and it is beneved that the enlargement of the law regulating the sale of "oleo" or butterine will also regulate its consumption at all places of public entertainment in such a way as to make imposition absolutely impossible.

CHANGES IN THE NAVY.

Kirkland Succeeds Benham and Walker to Take the Pacific Station.

WASHINGTON, March 22.-Commodore Kirkland arrived at the Navy Department at noon to-day, and when he left the department, after an interview with Secretary Herbert, he carried with him the orders placing him in command of the South Atlantic station, to succeed Admiral Benham, who has gone to Blueffelds. A month ago Commodore Kirkland, then in command of the League Island navy yard, was ordered to Honolulu to take command of the forces there, and also of the entire Pacific station, relieveing Admiral Irwin, who will retire on April 15. The Commodore started to California to take the steamer last Saturday for Honolulu, but he was intercepted before sailing by a telegraphic order to return to Washington, where he arrived to-day. The South Atlantic station, which he will now command, had been reserved for Admiral Stanton, but the latter will continue to command the North Atlantic station for a time, at least, though it is expected that he will ultimately yield this command to Commodore

The change in Commodore Kirkland's orders makes necessary a new detail to suc-ceed to the command of the Pacific station, and it was announced at the department this afternoon that Admiral Walker had been selected for the place. It has been the custom of the department to allow an officer of this grade a turn of four years shore duty after so long a term of sea service. No explanation of the selection is afforded at the Navy Department, but it is learned that Admiral Walker was chosen for the post by Secretary Herbert, after consultation with the President. This fact leads to the conclusion that the executive expects that important and delicate duties are to be discharged in the near future by the commander of the Pacific station, which is already the most important sea command in the navy, embracing Bering sea, Hawali, the Pacific coast and the entire western coasts of Central and South America. Admiral Walker has not yet been ordered to Honolulu, and it may be that he will not go there.

The Department of State has at last called upon the Navy Department to supply a fleet to police the seal waters, and every effort is being made to get the vessels together. The vessels will number ten, if so many can be assembled-five revenue marine and fish commission boats, and probably the Yorktown, Concord, Bennington, Alert and Mohican. The idea of sending the Charleston around from Montevideo has been abandoned. Whether Admiral Walker will himself go north in command of the fleet is not yet known, but in view of the uncertain state of the regulations touching sealing and the necessity for prompt action in emergencies, it is possible that the admiral himself will be on the scene. This is the more probable from the intimation by the department that his duty is to be temporary, and that he is likely to be relieved before next fall. While it is true that the Bering sea fleet was in charge of Commander Ludlow, last year, the State Department expects, notwithstanding certain hitches in the regulations with Great Britain relative to the sealing question, that the regulations prescribed by the arbitrators will be in effect when the season opens this year, and thus the field of operations will be so widened as to require the administration of an admiral.

Tax on "Wind" Sales Favored. WASHINGTON, March 22.-The House committee on agriculture to-day heard statements by Dr. John Trimble and Col. J. H. Brigham, of Ohio, the secretary and master, respectively, of the National Grange, in favor of the Hatch anti-option bill. Mr. Trimble said the Grange did not wish to stop buying for future delivery actual produce or merchandise. It was the buying and selling with no expectation that a bushel of grain would change hands that the Grange wished to make unprofitable. Colonel Brigham declared that the farmers in this country were almost unanimously in favor of the legislation proposed by the bill. Gross misropresentations concerning this had been made but its purpose was to prevent fictitious business as against legitimate business. If, as asserted, it should prove disastrous to the farmers and business interests, it would be very easy matter to repeal it. He favored making the tax on "wind" sales so high

Wednesday's Blizzard Spent Its Energy in Western States.

It Left Deep Drifts of Snow and Caused the Railways Much Trouble-Gale Blowing in Wyoming.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 22 .- So far as this city was concerned there was scarcely such a thing as a blizzard, less than an inch of snow falling, although there was a decided drop in the temperature. However, other parts of the Northwest got enough snow to make up for the lack of it here. All over both Dakotas, across the northern part of Minnesota and along the shores of Lake Superior beyond Marquette, Mich., the storm raged with great fury, drifting badly and delaying business to a greater or less extent all over the territory named. Duluth was cut off by wire for a time yesterday and business there and at West Superior has suffered greatly, but the most delay to transportation and business seems to have been in South Dakota. The snowfall in that State was heaviest, and the roads were caught unprepared. The Northern Pacific was ready for the storm in Dakota and Montana and further west, and their big snow plows kept the tracks well cleared, so that their trains have been practically on schedule time. Aberdeen, S. D., reports drifts from eight to ten feet high, but as the weather there is warm the snow will not damage the wheat that has been sown. Pierre reports the storm as abating this evening and the weather now warm and pleasant, but no trains left there to-day, and the drifts, from ten to fifteen high, are stopping all business. The warm weather and the short duration of the storm prevents any danger to cattle. Snow Has Ceased Falling. OMAHA, Neb., March 22.-The blizzard that has been raging over the northwest for forty-eight hours continued to-day in western and central Nebraska, Wyoming and the Black Hills. All trains on the Union Pacific between North Platte and Cheyenne are still tied up, but rotary plows are out and great efforts will be made to clear up the roads. Trains left Omaha this evening west bound. The snow has ceased falling west of Cheyenne, but a terrific gale is blowing. The snow varied in depth from a foot on a level at Sydney to four feet at Spearfish. The effect on cattle will be disastrous as all the big ranges of the State are in the district covered by the deep snow. A dispatch from Denver says that the snowstorm which has been in progress there at intervals for thirty-six hours past ceased at 11 o'clock to-day. The fall is very light and the weather being warm the snow is disappearing rapidly. Traffic and the Midland as well as Eastern Railways has not been delayed. Railroads in the blockaded districts are making all haste to take advantage of the cessation of the snowfall to clear the tracks. They have out snowplows and shoveling gangs, and hope to get the tracks clear within another twenty-four hours. The worst blockade is reported from Chadron, on the Elkhorn, where several trains are snowed in. The track has not been used since Monday. The train reached Chadron to-day after being held in a snowbank Chadron into Wyoming Tuesday, and has not been since heard from.

The Snow Melting.

DEADWOOD, S. D., March 22.-The storm ceased to-day. The day has been warm and the snow is melting gradually, and if a warm rain does not set in, which is not likely, as the barometer indicates fair weather, the dangers of a flood are past. A straggling team now and then endeavored to plunge through the drifts, and finally succeeded in opening the Main street, but Central avenue is still blocked by drifts six and seven feet deep. The Burington & Missouri will have a train in to-morrow, and possibly the Elkhorn. The loss on cattle between Edgemont and Sheridan will exceed 80 per cent. The storm was terrific in all directions.

The stranger left after promising to some day make good the loss. Yesterday Mr. Daugherty received through the postoffice at this place the following letter:

"James Daugherty, Dear Sir-I want you to put $150 at the southwest corner of your hog lot. Put it in a baking powder can and bury it about six inches under the ground, and put a brick over it so I can find it. When I come and fail to find it I will burn your barn and poison your stock, and if you think I am not a man of my word try me and see. Now my friend, if you blow this I will stick dynamite under your house some night and there will be a strange face in hell for breakfast. Now put the money, $150, in a baking powder can and bury it in the hog pen in the corner near the railroad, so I can find it. ### EVIDENCE AGAINST VACCINATION. Terre Haute Judge Says the Court Wants All the Facts.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 22.-The Blue anti-vaccination case was resumed before Judge White to-day and will now continue without further postponement. The defense to-day endeavored to have stricken out all of the evidence of Prof. John Pickering, of London, that was given last week, as well as to prohibit all testimony regarding the inefficacy of vaccination, claiming that the power of the Board of Health was absolute and was legally recognized so, and hence the utility of vaccination could not be questioned. The court ruled that the plaintiff had the right to show up the facts adverse to vaccination, thus allowing the case to go on. The first witnesses were Samuel Barton and William Long, who testified as to their experiences as nurses in the smallpox hospital at Muncie, both of whom have had smallpox, one of them after vaccination. Dr. Metcalf, secretary of the State Board of Health, then testified as to his official acts in regard to smal!pox cases and to his belief that vaccination, and especially revaccination and revaccination again, prevented smallpox. Adjournment was then had until to-morrow

BLOODY TRAGEDY.

A Pole Shoots Several Persons and Narrowly Escapes Lynching.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 22.-A bloody tragedy occurred at Midvale this evening. John Sanders, a Polish boardinghouse keeper, had a quarrel with Mike Boshop, and fired at the latter with a rifle. The shot missed Boshop, but killed a two-year-old boy in his mother's arms in an adjoining room. The second shot entered Boshop's body near the heart. Sanders then accused his wife of being too intimate with the boarders, and shot her twice, in the leg and in the neck. The latter wound will probably prove fatal, and it is believed Boshop can live but a few hours. In less than an hour a mob of five hundred gathered at Sanders's and attempted to tear down the house. Sanders fired upon them until his ammunition was exhausted, and was then arrested. An effort was made to lynch him, but the sheriff prevailed upon the mob to let the law take its course.

The Ex-Boss Apparently Owes Gravesend Nearly $700,000.

NEW YORK, March 22.-Gravesend's board of audit, made up of C. C. Overton, D. S. Vansiclen and James Voorhis, met to-day and gave the statement out officially that John Y. McKane's accounts with the town are so muddled that he apparently owes Gravesend very nearly $700,000. A report as to the financial transactions of Mc-Kane was expected from his son George, but the young man sent word that he was entitled, under the law, until next Tuesday to make the report, and he proposed to take

Boston Transcript. The consumption of gold in the arts and in dentistry throughout the world is estimated at from $65,000,00% to $80,000,000 a year. For those purposes about $22,000,000 worth of this metal was used in the United States during 1893. It has been reckoned that within ten years this country will employ the whole of its gold product of $33,-000,000 annually for trinkets, gilding and teeth, the increase in that direction being at the rate of $1,000,000 per annum. The consumption of silver in the arts is estimated at about half that of gold. Of late the use of gold leaf for furniture and interior decoration has come greatly into fashion. The gold thus utilized is a total loss. One gold dollar makes a hundred leaves of gold leaf of commercial size-three

Some of the stolen stores have been found at Tiburon, a small town near the post, and three citizens of that place have been arrested. Privates named Kingsmeyer and Wilson have also been placed under arrest suspected of having been implicated in the robbery.

They allege that this is defamatory to their characters, besides taking away their means of livelihood, as they have no other occupation, and a Western Union employe, unless reinstated by the company, cannot get employment in any other telegraph concern.

THE LADY AND THE MOUSE. Woman Fears the Rodent Because She Has Not Been Taught to Fight.

Baltimore Sun.

As times advance old-time theories explode spontaneously. This statement is relative to the fact that a boy recently let a mouse loose at a woman's meeting and then lingered about to see the fun. The theory that women are born afraid of a mouse is the one that was on this occasion exploded. The president of the meeting arose and with calm deliberation killed the mouse, and with calmer deliberation extinguished the boy. That is all there is to the story, but the principle that women are not as afraid of a mouse as they are popularly supposed to be is born. Thus is the modern woman emancipating herself from the thraldom of old-time misapprehension. It is, however, worth while to explain that the assemblage was one of dress reform enthusiasts. There is a reason for women entertaining a haunting fear of a mouse, and seeking refuge mounted on tables and chairs and giving vent to squeals of terror. Even a brave-hearted warrior, who is not afraid of the cannon's mouth, has no relish for bodily contact with the diminutive rodent. Take your hero and dress him up in lawn lingerie, with laces and flounces and straps, and springs, and bones, and wires, and the numerous and sundy things that belong to the attire of the usual woman, hamper his activity in the way women are hampered, and then let a mouse loose in the room with him, and the chances are ten to nothing that his first impulse on beholding that mouse is to hop up to a pedestal of safety, to a vantage point from which he can keep his eye on the whereabouts of that mouse. Instinct suggests to him how that mouse would feel if it sought hiding in among the folds of his superabundant lingerie. He knows the mouse wouldn't hurt him, but quite the same as though it would, he would feel impelled to escape from it. The fear of a mouse imbedded in the feminine mind is built wholly on the utter lack of the weapon with which to meet the enemy It is the human prerogative to scream, and the chances are man himself would soon learn under the feminine environments to avail himself of it. From the time man is introduced to atmospheric existence the idea of self-defense is promulgated in him. This is an item that that is neglected in the early education of the gentler sex. Women are discovering themselves, each other and the drawback to their progress nowadays. Dress reform is a feature of emancipation. The other night a resident of this city was awakened shortly after midnight by his daughter, who informed him that a bright light was burning in the dining room, and the rattle of silver suggested burglars. He arose hastily and crept noiselessly down stairs, club in hand. Arriving on the scene of the illumination he surprised his wife preparing a dose of medicine at the sideboard, and thus the burglar and the rattle of silver was explained. He was a pleture in his white night robe and a pair of boots, it was like an illogical woman to appreciate the novelty of his appearance and inquire why he had his boots long been prominent in the councils of the "Well," said he, "if you think I'd come down stairs to kick a burgiar out in my bare feet, madam, you're mistaken." It is a masueline characteristic, born of early training, to prepare for self-defense. It is feminine to faint away or to hop up to a high place and scream. Environment and education are responsible. The modern woman has a banner-bearer in the person of the sister who killed the mouse an extinguished the small boy. Women must
